SCRIP WAS WORTHLESS.

The Interesting Story Of An Industrial Experiment.

H. B. CAMP'S NEW RAILROAD.

An "Independent" Reporter Looks Into the Exchange Method of Building the New Line Into the Massillon Coal Fields—Work Nearly at a Standstill.

Work on Mr. H. B. Camp's new railroad into the Massillon coal district is not being pushed through very rapidly. Only fifteen of the original fifty workmen are on duty; the others have returned to their homes in Akron and elsewhere. They left because they were tired of being paid in scrip. Those who are still working say that they have been promised payment in money, and they will take nothing else, for the scrip, they claim, is worth no more than so much blank paper.

Mr. Camp is president of a number of concerns in Akron, Greentown and Jeromeville. He owns a small railroad, and he has money invested in many directions. In short, he is a very wealthy man. He is also a member of the Akron Labor Exchange. This institution's membership does not include many rich men. Its purpose is the capitalization of labor, and it claims to be able to get along without the coin of the realm. It is supposed to have a great general store, where there should be on sale anything from a needle or a plug of tobacco to a threshing machine or a steam engine, not forgetting the necessaries of life. To the exchange the shoemaker brings his shoes, the farmer his produce, the watchmaker his watches, and all other tradesmen to this place bring the fruits of their labor, and exchange them for anything of equal value that is to be had. Most men are unable to manufacture the things that are most wanted, so they simply place their labor on the market and stand ready to exchange it for what they most want.

Mr. Camp joined the exchange, and brought in a Wayne county farm of 260 acres. This is what the exchange most wanted. It could then raise its own produce, and every man who was willing to work could find employment cultivating the broom corn, the potatoes and the innumerable other things they could grow. Mr. Camp wanted labor for his farm. He intended to build a railroad from somewhere about Wooster to the Massillon coal field, and he could use a large number of strong men.

Now here something is wrong. Mr. Camp's son, Louis Camp, of Akron, who is with the men while his father is in New York, says that the senior Camp deeded to the Labor Exchange a farm of 260 acres, whose value is $7,800 for which he is to receive $7,800 worth of labor. The men are to be paid at the rate of $9 a week and are to be boarded at the rate of $3 a week, all payable in the exchange's scrip. This scrip is issued in all denominations, the same as money, and at the exchange's store it is supposed to have the same value as money. The men tell a slightly different story.

"Mr. Camp," said one of the men the other noon, while he rested in the shade, "agreed to turn over this farm and one-third of its value, either in cash or such things as are most needed in the store, and in consideration of this the exchange was to furnish the labor for building six miles of his railroad, from Leavenworth, the starting point, to Kidron, which is about a mile west of our quarters here. We have been working about six weeks now, and regularly we have received, besides our board, six dollars a week in scrip, the greater part of which we sent to our families in Akron. After the first week or two our wives wrote us that the scrip was practically worthless, the store being nearly empty, lacking most the necessaries of life. Well, we kept on working, thinking that after awhile the store would be stocked up, and, besides, other merchants in the beginning would take the scrip in small amounts. But it grew worse instead of better. The store's stock was not replenished, and nobody would take the scrip off our hands under any circumstances. Then thirty-five of our men quit work. They said to continue was to give their labor away. They left last Monday. The few of us who are still at work have been given assurance that our wages will be paid in money, and we intend to work at least until Mr. Camp gets home from New York."

The men say that Mr. Camp went to New York to attend the auction sales, and to bring back great quantities of supplies which he will buy at a low figure and turn over to the Akron Labor Exchange at a good round price, a part of the one-third of $7,800 which he is supposed to pay in cash or its equivalent.

The grading of the new railroad could be finished in a few weeks if the men had kept at work. The engineers selected a course by which nearly all the steep hills of Wayne county could be avoided, and with the aid of modern machinery the grading and filling is comparatively light work, and rapid progress has been made in the past. Mr. Camp at one time figured on putting this road through at a cost of $10,000 a mile, but the son says that this cannot now be done. It will be at least $2,000 more. The men live in a long, narrow structure of straight up and down boards, near the farm of G. W. Ross, just this side of Kidron. At the home of Mr. Ross, the Messrs. Camp, David Wise, of Greentown, the assistant superintendent, and a few others board. Mr. Camp, sr., who resides in Akron, is seldom to be found there, his business interests elsewhere often necessitating his going away.

A CUCUMBER FACTORY.

The Board of Trade Trying to Get One.

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR FARMERS.

By Their Co-Operation it is Extremely Probable that Massillon Can Obtain a New Industry, and the Farmers a Profitable Source of Income.

The board of trade met Thursday night in the mayor's court room. Secretary Jones reported that two silver medals had been sent to the board, from the Philadelphia Museums to be presented to the Massillon delegates who were present at the opening of the institution. The medals will be given to Messrs. J. H. Hunt and C. M. Russell, who represented the Massillon board.

Robert P. Skinner presented a communication from the largest packers of pickles, fruit butters and sauces in the United States, wherein they suggest a willingness to erect a salting house in Massillon, provided a responsible organization will secure pledges from farmers to devote an aggregate of 300 acres to cucumber growing. It is believed that the salting house would employ a number of people, furnish a remunerative market to farmers, and enable the farmers to employ a large number of pickers. It is also hoped, if a salting house is erected here, that it will lead to the building of canning factories and the like.

It was stated that in this vicinity the farmers were almost exclusively engaged in growing cereals and that truck farming would prove a very beneficial addition to their labors. H. C. Brown moved that a committee of five be appointed to confer with all parties at interest and see what can be done.

President Ricks appointed as such committee H. C. Brown, E. A. Jones, D. Hemperly, H. H. Everhard and Robert P. Skinner. This committee will act at once, and obtain pledges from farmers to devote an agreed acreage to cucumber growing.

The state hospital trustees again suggested willingness to purchase additional land for the state, but declined to do so until a switch should have been built to the grounds. It was reported that progress on the switch was being made.

A marine engine manufacturing company invited the board to propose terms for its removal to Massillon. Two other concerns were suggested as open to inducements. After some desultory discussion the board adjourned.

A BEAUTIFUL BRIDE.

Marriage of Mr. Adolph Dysle and Miss Millicent List.

Miss Millicent List and Mr. Adolph Dysle, of Canton, were married at 6 o'clock on Thursday evening at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George List, in East Tremont street. To the soft strains of the Lohengrin wedding march played by Schworm's orchestra, the bridal party, consisting of Miss List with her maid of honor, Miss Edna Smith, and Mr. Dysle with his best man, Mr. Edwin Janson, of Canton, passed through the hall and into the back drawing room, where, beneath an arch formed of smilax and carnations, the ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. E. Digel. Supper was then served in the adjoining dining room, the table decorations being smilax and white roses.

The bride wore white organdie trimmed with lace and carried white roses. The maid of honors' gown was white organdie made over blue. Mrs. George List, mother of the bride wore black lace over corn colored silk. The house was decorated with masses of smilax, roses, and carnations, and the presents displayed were many and beautiful. The bride and groom left on an evening train for the East, midst showers of rice, and the good wishes of friends and relatives. They will be absent about ten days, when they will begin housekeeping on Aultman Avenue, Canton. The bride is a charming girl, whose popularity is not only due to her beauty, but to a grace of manner which has won her many friends. Among those present at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Taylor and Mrs. Lena Myers, of Orrville, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith, of Cleveland, Mr. and Mrs. Clay Coyle, Mr. and Mrs. Bolt, Miss Bertha Dysle and Mr. Alfred Dysle, of Canton.

THE DOXSEE ESTATE.

An Injunction Asked and Various Alligations Made.

CANTON, Oct. 7.—A petition has been filed in court by Lawyer R. W. McCaughey, of Massillon, which charges Harriet B. Doxsee, James Doxsee and their attorney, Orlando C. Volkmor with disposing of the Doxsee property in East Main street with intent to defraud the estate of the late Andrew M. Bigger. The petition relates that Harriet B. Doxsee and I. N. Doxsee delivered their promissory note in the sum of $1,600 to Mr. Bigger in 1883, which is yet unpaid, and that interest amounting to $1,938.32 is also due. The total amount $3,538.32 was placed in the hands of Lawyer McCaughey for collection, by Mr. Bigger's executor, James D. Gillam, and the Doxsees agreed to dispose of their property to satisfy the claim.

Recently, so the petition states, the property was transferred to James H. Hunt for a consideration of $4,000, the sum named in the deed now on file in Canton. It has been ascertained that $2,700 was given by Harriet B. Doxsee to James Doxsee, who has invested the sum in a stock of groceries. As the defendants have refused to pay the Bigger claim, Lawyer McCaughey has requested the court to enjoin the defendants from disposing or incumbering in any way the present condition of the investment of the proceeds of the sale of the property involved, and petitions for judgment in the amount of his claim. A temporary injunction has been allowed.

Elizabeth Deringer has been appointed administrator of the estate of George Locker, of Sandy township. Application has been made by the city of Canton vs. W. W. Clark and others to appropriate land for the opening of Cassidy street. A final account has been filed in the estate of Herman Marks, of Massillon. In the estate of George C. Waltz, of Osnaburg, a petition to sell land has been filed.

Marriage licenses have been granted to John F. Wushaum and Emma J. Myers, Ferdinand Gibson and Zelda B. Dager, Jonas F. Hock and Ella Murray, William J. Penman and Lola C. McFarren, Harry S. Renkell and Minnie M. Schlimmer and George P. Pettit and Winnie G. Barr, of Canton, and Lee F. Graybill and Viola M. Pague, of Massillon.

ITS REGULAR MEETING.

The Board of Education Transacts Business of General Interest.

The board of education met, Friday evening, Miss Folger being the only absent member. The bills were paid, and the report of the committee on teachers, concerning the engagement of Miss Blanchard as one of the high school corps was accepted.

Supt. Jones reported that the transfer of the grammar department of the North street building to State street had been made, and that now everything was running smoothly again and all concerned appeared to be satisfied.

Mr. Jones was authorized to purchase a new supply of drawing paper for the school, the present stock being almost exhausted. What is on hand now was ordered about two years ago. The new paper will cost about $59, and will likely last as long.

The proposition of Mrs. Fanny Peirce, granddaughter of the late George Harsh and heiress to his estate, to pay $175 to the board of education if it relinquish its claim to the Harsh library, which was willed to the union schools of Massillon, was accepted, and the money received will be invested in books for the schools.

ARRAYED IN ROYAL BLUE

The McLain-Barney Wedding at Cleveland.

MANY MASSILLON GUESTS PRESENT

The Young Couple Take Part in a Beautiful Ceremony at Trinity Congregational Church—They Will Be At Home Here in About Three Weeks.

Mr. Harry Leslie McLain, assistant cashier of the Union National Bank, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. McLain, won a lovely and accomplished bride in Cleveland, on Wednesday afternoon, in the person of Miss Bessie Mary Barney, who has visited here so often that she will be no stranger upon coming to Massillon to make it her home. The ceremony took place at 3 o'clock in Trinity Congregational church in the presence of many friends. The bride wore a travelling gown of royal blue, trimmed with a lighter shade of blue. Her light hair was partly hidden under a becoming hat, and the picture she made was graceful and pretty. She approached with her father, Mr. George H. Barney, and carried white roses. Her maid of honor was her sister, Miss Corinne Barney, a girl of queenly presence, stunning enough to have stepped out of a Gibson picture.

The groom and his best man, Mr. Clarence Per Lee McLain entered from another door, and the marriage service was read by the Rev. R. A. George, pastor of the church. The ushers were Messrs Harry Barney, of Cleveland, John Evans McLain, Melville Everhard, and Edward R. Albrecht.

The wedding was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents, 83 Vienna street, the guests being confined to the family circle. At 6 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. McLain left for New York over the Lake Shore road, and will return to Massillon in about two weeks. MRS. EVERHARD RE-ELECTED.

Chosen Again by Acclamation—Miss Anthony's Address.

ALLIANCE, Oct. 8.—Mrs. C. McCullough Everhard, of Massillon, was yesterday unanimously re-elected president of the Ohio Woman Suffrage Association. In spite of the fact that she had announced her intention of declining a renomination, Mrs. Everhard was unable to withstand the pressure which was brought to bear upon her, the nominating committee absolutely refusing to take her name from the slate.

Miss Susan B. Anthony spoke last night at the closing session of the convention. As is usual when Miss Anthony's presence is advertised, hundreds of people had assembled to hear her lecture, and as the great suffragist appeared a flutter of handerchiefs, and prolonged applause testified to her unfailing popularity. Just before she rose to speak, a number of little girls dressed in white came forward and presented her with bunches of white chrysanthemums. "Children," said Miss Anthony in thanking them, "you little know how different is your attitude toward me from what it might have been half a century ago." She then went on to tell of how in those early days woman suffragists were hooted after in the streets, and children taught to hold them in disrespect. Although now a woman 77 years of age, Miss Anthony is still able to make a vigorous speech and her arguments last night were as clear and forcible as ever.

SYSTEMATIC THIEVING.

A W. & L. E. Detective Runs the Case Down.

TWO ARRESTS ALREADY MADE.

In One Night Thirty-Eight Pieces of Bridge Lumber Disappear—Tools and All Sorts of Railroad Property Carted Off—A Confession Made to the Detective.

For several months past the W. & L. E. Railway Company has been greatly annoyed by persons who practice petty thieving, and the services of the company's detective, Joseph Smith, have been required in Massillon. Various articles have mysteriously disappeared from the company's yards, and on the night of September 4th about thirty-eight pieces of bridge lumber, which had been unloaded near the Walnut street bridge for use in making repairs west of town, were carted away.

At the request of Mr. Smith search warrants were issued by Mayor Schott, and accompanied by Policeman Ertle Mr. Smith visited the homes of Frank Rellick, a W., & L. E brakeman and Christ Bustick, residents of Columbian Heights. At Rellick's home several saws, two jacks, which were identified as company property, and a portion of the missing lumber were found in the cellar. The rest had been used by him in erecting an out house, except a small portion found in Bustick's possession, and which the latter claims was given him by Rellick. At nine o'clock last night Rellick returned from his run and was promptly arrested by Detective Smith and Policeman Getz. He admitted that he had taken the articles referred to, the jacks having been stolen from the Norwalk yards.

When arraigned this morning both Rellick and Bustick pleaded guilty. Rellick was also suspected of having taken 900 bridge rings, but he denied all knowledge of these. He also claimed the saws had been given him, but he did not deny that he knew they belonged to the W. & L. E. Company.

Bustick, it seems, is not entirely to blame for taking the lumber. He told the mayor that Rellick had borrowed a saw and had given him three boards for its use. With this exception the lumber taken by Bustick was not new, and he claims to have been told by Rellick that no one would object to his taking it away.

The mayor fined Rellick $50 and costs, amounting to $57.10. The amount was paid this afternoon. With Bustick he was more lenient, imposing a fine of $10 and the costs.

SHE FEARS ASSASSINATION.

Miss Sophia Yanda Shot in Her Room Last Night.

Miss Sophia Yanda, a young woman employed at the residence of D. T. Frank, is almost in hysterics. She fears that someone has designs on her life.

Between eight and nine o'clock Thursday evening as she was passing through a small dark hallway on the second floor of the Frank residence, a window was shattered by a gunshot, and three of the shots entered her right hand.

Her screams brought to the place Frank Streb, also an employe of Mr. Frank, and he instituted a thorough search, but could find no trace of any one.

Dr. Williamson dressed Miss Yanda's injuries, which are slight; but she sustained a great nervous shock. That it was an accidental shot is proven by the fact that there being no light it was utterly impossible for anyone to have seen her from below.

A Quiet Wedding of Two Well Known People.

Robert Per Lee Grant and Miss Edith Simms, a comely young lady who is a general favorite in colored society, both in Massillon and Canton, were quietly married Thursday evening at the rectory of St. Timothy's church. Mr. and Mrs. Grant have been residents of Massillon since childhood and have many friends. Mr. Grant is one of Russell & Co.'s trusted employes, and as a wedding present received a neat check from the company's office force.

LOUIS SPUHLER.

Louis Spuhler, who returned from the regular army some months ago and has since resided with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Spuhler, in Grassmere, died at about 8 o'clock Thursday evening, of typhoid fever. His last illness dates back but three weeks, although he had not enjoyed perfect health for several months previous to his discharge from the army. He was in the hospital for several months with remittent fever, and when he came home at the expiration of his term, he was not as strong and hearty as he had been before. The funeral will be held from the residence at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Mr. Spuhler's death is a great shock to his hosts of friends in Massillon and elsewhere, especially his army acquaintances, who by close and continual association learned to know and appreciate him as the honest and upright man that he was. SMALL BUT DELIGHTFUL.

The Marriage of Mr. Lee Graybill and Miss Violet Pague.

It was a small but delightful wedding party that witnessed the marriage ceremony of Mr. Lee F. Graybill and Miss Violet Pague at the home of Mr. J. A. Beattie, Thursday afternoon, October seventh.

Mr. and Mrs. Beattie received the guests in their usual happy manner. Only the immediate relatives were present. The service used by the Rev. J. F. Clokey was deeply impressive. The bride wore a beautiful traveling gown of dark green broadcloth and carried pink roses. The groom looked handsome and happy.

The decorations were smilax and carnations. The merited popularity of these two young people was well proven by the beautiful gifts which were sent in from all directions by their many friends.
